

SYLVAN TANG

LGBT Rights Advocacy Program Director

As an LGBT rights advocate, Sylvan strives to combat discrimination and violence against LGBT people all over the globe by raising awareness of these issues and working with different organizations to support the LGBT community.

Originally from Hong Kong, he is currently a student at York University in Toronto. His study interests include Gender and Sexual Orientation Equality, LGBT Rights and Equity of Treatment. An ally to the LGBT community, Sylvan liaises with various LGBT groups on campus, including the Trans Bisexual Lesbian Gay Allies at York (TBLGAY) and the Centre for Women and Trans People (CWTP). Prior to joining the Canadian Human Rights International Organization (CHRIO), Sylvan has worked for the Centre for Immigrants and Community Services (CICS) as a Program

Assistant to provide support to new immigrants and to serve the local community.
